REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON PRISON DISCIPLINE.

GEORGE W. BENHAM, CHAIRMAN, AUBURN, NEW YORK, 1910.

The subject of Prison Discipline is one which, for many years has received the attention of the penological experts of not only this country, but of the whole world. The fact that its consideration has extended over a period of time, the beginning of which we would not undertake to fix, and during which many able advocates of various theories have written and spoken, renders it extremely difficult in a present-day discussion, to escape a repetition of many deductions and recommendations. At the outset we desire to disclaim originality in many of the features of this report, and will simply make some suggestions which we regard as important to the promotion of prison discipline, in the hope that we may be of some assistance to those who are interested in the care of the unfortunate placed in our charge.

In ancient times the accepted idea of the object of imprisonment was punishment and revenge, yet there were even then advocates of a plan which would produce the results sought at the present time. We read that Pope Clement XI erected, in 1704, the prison of St. Michael for boys and youths, the system of management being silent association in labor by day and separation in cells at night. In various places upon its walls there appeared the following inscription: "It is of little use to restrain criminals by punishment unless you reform them by training," and in subsequent years we find abundant evidence that many of the penological experts of ancient times had in view the same route to the prisoner's reformation that is accepted today. The earlier methods of producing that which we are now striving for, were more severe and revolting, and, as we think, less effective in accomplishing the desired end. The in-

JUVENILE IDLENESS AND VAGABONDAGE.

BY EMMA DE DESSEWFFY.

It is certain that most juvenile criminals take their first steps toward crime by vagabond ways, rather than by abandonment. One reason that they fall into such ways is that the schoolhouses are so far from home that they are led astray by bad companions. This could be prevented by having less pretentious school buildings with their great crowds of children. The cottage system has been decided to be best for many institutions, why not for schools? If the question were carefully studied I feel sure that the extra expense for having small schools scattered among the people, would not be so great as the expense entailed on the state by the care of the vagabonds and criminals who, as the result of having to go to schools so far from home, are subjected to the temptation to truancy, and to pilfering fruits, and other things from stands and stalls, and later of taking things of more value. To the expense of caring for them as juvenile criminals should also be added hospital care, for many are ruined physically as well as morally.

Another prevention connected with the schools would be moral instruction in them. At present there is too much attempt to win prizes for high rank and too little attention is paid to fitting the children for the great conflicts in life. Too little is done to give them a love of honest toil. They should learn to love their vocations and to believe that a life of honest and useful industry is an honorable life. Children are apt to despise serious work and to look down on those who do it. I have seen more than one street boy pay a comrade to black his shoes or carry a bundle for him because he thought it was beneath him to do these things for himself.

As children are often taught to be dishonest by adults, there should be severe laws against any one who leads any child or young person into crime. So long as the purveyors of vice can escape by the payment of a fine or a brief imprisonment they are

SIXTY-FOURTH ANNUAL CONGRESS
AMERICAN PRISON ASSOCIATION

HOUSTON, TEXAS

SEPTEMBER 17th to 21st, 1934

PRELIMINARY ANNOUNCEMENT

Friends and Members of the American Prison Association:

Come to Houston, the Metropolis of South Texas! Our friends in Texas, under the leadership of Mr. W. A. Paddock, Chairman of the Texas Prison Board, are busily at work making plans for the coming Congress, and your Executive and Program Committees are likewise active in an effort to make the Texas meeting one that will not soon be forgotten.

Combine the Congress dates with your vacation. Houston is an attractive year round city. It would be hard to define that character which sets Houston apart among the cities of Texas. It is a consummation of many things, small and great. The association of an historic past; the memory of the spacious days of the old South; the energy of men and women who do what they set out to do. Houston has a flavor of its own, and all who taste it return for more. So make your plans to include a pleasurable and unusual vacation - boating, fishing, golf, beautiful drives, bathing, horseback riding, tennis - in short every form of desirable recreation in a peaceful, healthful, all-embracing atmosphere.

CONGRESS DATES

The month and dates - September 17th to 21st, - were decided upon after a careful consideration of all factors, local and nation-wide.

CONGRESS HEADQUARTERS

The Rice Hotel has been selected as the place for our meetings. It is a three million dollar structure, with accommodations for 1,500 guests, and is considered one of the finest and most completely equipped hotels in the South. The management is enthusiastic at our coming, and most anxious to
